Republican State Ticket.

For Governor—
WILLIAM E. SMITH, of Milwaukee.
For Lieutenant Governor—
J. M. BINGHAM, of Chippewa.
For Secretary of State—
HANS B. WARNER, of Pierce.
For State Treasurer—of Winnebago.

For Attorney General—
ALEXANDER WILSON, of Iowa.
For Superintendent of Public Instruction—W. C. WHITFORD, of Rock.

The Wisconsin Democracy is unanimously demoralized.

The Watertown ticket offers itself to the Wisconsin Democrats.

The Democrats are having a feast of crow and a flow of disgust.

The Democratic leaders, like the party, are all on the decline this year.

The only comfort the Democrats in this State find is in the news from DeKalb county, Mississippi. They applaud the verdict.

In casting about for a man to head the ticket it is not fair to permit Dr. Magann to go unnoticed. Like Doolittle, he never declines.

The official organ of the Janesville Democracy lets loose in this brief strain over the going up of the Democratic Convention: "The result is demoralization and universal disgust."

There is a contest going on between Harper, of the Okolona States, and Buchanan, of the Lemars (Iowa) Sentinel, as to which can make the biggest fool of himself. It is nip and tuck so far.

The acquittal of Gully, who assassinated Miss Chisolm, is the first Democratic gun of the campaign. To the party, it is a victory which more than makes up for the loss of California and Maine.

It is a significant fact the Socialists, the next-door neighbor to the Communists, were predominant at Bob Ingersoll's Convention in Cincinnati on Sunday. It would not be surprising if they captured both Ingersoll and his party.

When "the prospects are bright" for an easy Democratic victory, the Madison Democrat says the situation becomes extremely embarrassing. When the prospects are not so bright, then the Janesville Times says it is "demoralization and universal disgust." Verily the Democrats are hard to please.

Such a dispatch as this from Madison, found its way in the Chicago Inter Ocean:
"On Wednesday, over 12,000 people were on the State fair grounds, and the gates receipts were nearly $7,000." To prove that this is a reckless way of distributing news it is only necessary to state that the receipts on Wednesday were $3,000.

A scene in a school room: Mr. Rankin, teacher, drilling his class in grammar. In the class are Nicholas D. Pratt, Gabe Bouck, Daniel Wells, and several others.
The subject is the conjugation of the verb,
"to decline." The teacher: Now, scholars, did you ever decline a noun? Never.
What have you declined? All in unison—"A nomination." He then drills them in the conjugation of the verb "to decline," and all together the class says: Indicative mode—present tense: I decline, you decline, he declines. We decline, you decline, they decline. Pas-tense: I have declined, you have declined, he has declined. We have declined, you have declined, they have declined. Future tense: I shall decline, you will decline, he will decline. We shall decline, you will decline, they will decline. Teacher Rankin informs the class that there is no potential mode in his system of grammar, which proved quite a relief to the scholars.

John C. Hayward, of Fond du Lac, who was attending a Medical College, at Chicago, murdered a man named McMahon, a saloon-keeper, a few months ago. He was arrested, and after a long delay his trial began on Wednesday of last week, and was concluded on Saturday. Contrary to the expectation of Hayward's friends, he was found guilty of murder and sentenced to imprisonment for life at Joliet. It was supposed that the jury would acquit him, inasmuch as the testimony against him was not very strong. He did not deny the killing, but maintained that he did it in self-defense. He went to McMahon's saloon one Saturday night, played cards till near midnight, drank considerable whisky, and finally got into a dispute with Mc-Mahon about the payment of 20 cents. The result of the dispute was the killing of McMahon by young Hayward who shot him dead. The parents of Hayward reside at Fond du Lac, and are among the best families in that city. John became somewhat reckless with sad results. A motion has been made for a new trial.

Here is a rich specimen of journalism, taken from the Janesville Times. It shows how easily a Democratic editor can be upset, and how natural it is for him to cry "I told you so." On Wednesday, the Times gloried itself in this manner:

"The Times had the honor of first mentioning Mr. Mitchell's name for the office of Governor, and takes to itself a degree of pride and satisfaction that it was the first to do so."

But when Mr. Mitchell declined positively, and gave the Democracy to understand that he would have nothing to do with such a crowd, the Janesville Times changed its tune, and spoke in this wise: We do not think the convention did a wise thing in forcing Mr. Mitchell's nomination, at at Denver the miraculous part of the whole matter occurred, the power to articulate returning to Miss Flint as suddenly as it went away. None but those who have experienced a similar misfortune for so long a time, can ever know what a wonderful sensation it must have created in the General's family when on Saturday the daughter returned to her home, and for the first time in six years spoke the names of those who had almost lost all hope that they would ever hear her voice again. The many friends of the family will unite with them in rejoicing over the happy occurrence.

PRESIDENT HAYES.

The Presidential Party Visiting Ohio—General Sherman.

LIMA, Sept. 14.—President Hayes and family and General Sherman passed through here in their special car yesterday afternoon, taking dinner at the French House. As the party came out from dinner they were greeted by a large assemblage of citizens, who called for speeches.
The President addressed them, congratulating them upon the return of prosperous times, and that it was pleasing to be at the head of affairs at a time when business of all kinds had an upward tendency, as the party in power generally get the credit for it. He referred to the growing town of Lima, its splendid railroad facilities, etc. General Sherman was then introduced. He said he was no speaker, but was always glad to meet his old Ohio friends, especially soldiers. This brought the soldiers to the front, who stood further remarks by the General in their eagerness to shake hands with him. A few moments after the train moved off for Fremont, the President's old home.

IMPRISONMENT FOR LIFE

Hayward Found Guilty of the Murder of McMahon, and Sentenced to Joliet for Life.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—The trial of John C.
Hayward, of Fond du Lac, for the murder of James McMahon, which began on Wednesday morning, concluded Saturday evening. State's Attorney Mills closed the case in an able, if not a brilliant argument, presenting the facts concisely, but strongly; and then making a speech which those who heard regard as the best effort of his remarkably successful career as State's Attorney. The jury was instructed at 4 o'clock and retired.
Hayward was removed to jail, and the court room cleared. At 6:45 o'clock word came that the jury had agreed upon a verdict. The prisoner was brought back to the judicial chamber by Deputy Bon-field and Haas, and proceeded to chat affably with one of his counsel.
Soon after Judge Barnum, Mr.
Mills, and Mr. Reed, the latter being defendant's senior counsel, came in, and the jury was sent for. The verdict was handed to Clerk Doyle. It found the defendant guilty in manner and form as indicted, and fixed his punishment at imprisonment in the penitentiary for life.
Polling did not affect the result. Mr. Reed made the usual motion for a new trial, but declared the verdict a monstrous one. Mr.
Mills thought that remark hardly proper, in which the court concurred.

Hayward in the meantime sat cheerfully smiling, apparently wholly indifferent to the importance to him of the proceedings.
When everything was disposed of he was marched back to jail. On the way thither he said he thought the verdict a terrible one. He, however, preferred not to talk about it, leaving the result in the hands of his attorneys.

ing. Funeral on Tuesday at 10 o'clock, at

COTTON IN TEXAS.

Harper's for October.

Texas seem to have learned the lesson which the Georgians and other people of the older cotton States have just now com-prehended, namely, that it "pays" to al-terate crops, and that no lasting prosperity can be reaped upon a single and exclusive staple. Cotton will always hold a chief place in the agricultural affections, because it is the only product which will command ready cash at its market value in the nearest town. The stranger who crossed the large open square, or plaza, which is found in every Texan town, at an early hour in the day, will marvel at the change of a few hours. Before midday the cotton teams have arrived from surrounding country, clustering upon every available space in the square and along the adjacent streets it would be impossible to portray a more animated or varied scene. Clumsy wagons, drawn by little compact oxen, or possibly by an ox and mule, are constantly arriving—the men, women and children mounted high upon the roughly bound cotton bales; the expert in cotton staple, who jumps nimbly, note book in hand, from wagon to wagon, buying here, rejecting there, and bartering everywhere; the stout Hebrew who pats their cheap but showy goods upon the rustics—these and hundreds who have each his own little bargain to drive—above all, the great Babel of purchase and sale. The journey to town on market day is an event in the monotony of life with most of these cotton growers. They throng the stores, the walks, and patronize the grotesque fakirs, the side shows, and all the wandering brotherhood of minstrelsy, sure to be there when trade is lively.

NELLIE GRANT SARTORIS.

Not an Obituary, but a Pleasant Memorandum.

From the Philadelphia Times.
Nellie Grant was one of the prettiest girls I ever saw. I remember that on the occasion of her father's first inauguration as President in 1869, she was with her mother and several distinguished ladies, including Mrs. Sprague. They, with foreign Ministers, Judges of the Supreme Court, noble Senators and army officers, were seated on the great platform over the main steps of the Capitol, while the 50,000 people were packed in front. Eliza C.
Ingersoll was Mrs. Grant's escort, and little Nellie stood by his side while her father read, in a voice scarcely audible to himself, his brief, inaugural address. When he had finished I well remember how naturally and unconsciously, as it were, Nellie bounced to his side and kissed him. She was dressed in a blue silk, and her bright golden hair hung in a profusion about her shoulders. She was a touching sight. She was led from the platform between Echuyler Colfax and her father, each holding her by the hand, while Chief Justice Chase congratulated Mrs. Grant. Nellie was then 13 years of age, and had a sweet face as I ever saw.
Subsequently I saw her at Long Branch, the sweetest place in the ball room and the favorite of her companions, the Misses Beal, Mrs. Hoey, Mrs. Murphy, Miss Barnes, and others whose names escape me.
She used to drive the last mare, Dris, to the phaeton along Ocean avenue, and it was not infrequent to see her having a friendly sport with Mrs. Hoey, who drove a pair of spirited ponies. I was at Long Branch, in the parlors of the West End Hotel, where she went every day to a dance, that Mr. Sartoris first met her, and two years afterwards they were married at the White House with great ceremony. Soon they sailed for Europe, where they have spent most of their time. We have heard reports of his neglect of her, but the story is a no doubt exaggerations, if not wholly false.

UP THE REAL SALT RIVER.

A Beautiful and Fertile Valley in Which are Ruins of Ancient Cities.

From the Salt Lake Herald.
Mr. Charles Crismon, of Hayden Ferry, Arizona, who is up from Maricopa Wells, in the Salt River Valley, called on us yesterday. He informed us that that is the finest farming district of any dimension in the territory, and should be occupied by industrious agriculturists. The valley is located nearly seven hundred and fifty miles a little east of south from here, and about one hundred miles from Sonora, Mexico. It is at present settled by a number of thirty farmers, but there is plenty of room for many more. It is seventy miles in length and at different points from ten to twenty in width; the soil is very rich, all over; water for irrigating is plentiful, and timber for firewood abounds in the surrounding hills, but none large enough for lumber, which can be readily and cheaply obtained at the railroad, some thirty miles distant. The climate is salubrious, spring and summer being the only seasons of the year. Sowing, planting and reaping can be prosecuted at an time, and the earth be made to yield perpetually. Fruits of every variety may be cultivated and grown there. Mr. Cris-mon says that the country is one of the best of the country being populated and tilled hundreds of years ago. Ruins of cities and towns, irrigating ditches and drains, etc., are to be seen on all sides. There is yet plenty of land, with complete water privileges, for settlers who might take a notion to locate there.

grateful hearts for the rescue of the child, and petitions for the richest benison on her youthful rescuer. Emma stated that while strolling about she slipped and fell to the point where the ledge stopped her descent, and in her efforts to protect herself she grasped the crevice of the rock as stated. To let go was to fall, and she held on.

A WONDERFUL PARROT.

One that Can Talk, Laugh, Sing, and Call the Cows.

From the Springfield Republican.

Among the many interesting accounts of smart, educated parrots, allow me to tell you of a bird that is an honor and an ornament to the State of Vermont. She is the most prominent member in the household of Oscar Dix, of Dummerston. As far as beauty is concerned, neither she nor I have anything to say. A strange, unfortunate habit which she has of pulling out her own feathers gives her the appearance of having come off defeated in some battle. Her remaining plumage is of the usual parrot green, but in this case it is not emblematic of their intelligent possessor. The charm of her talking lies in her clear, distinct enunciation, and the variety of her utterances. She has a habit of saying, "Hello! how do you do?" and "Good by" when they leave. Her funniest exclamation is "There! I've just found out," and she usually ends the expression with a burst of laughter. A rap on the cage will bring out the welcome "Come in!" She asks the question "Is it cold to-day?" and then remarks "Polly's cold out here!" She will sob and cry in the most heart broken way, and calls the following names: "Uncle Oscar, Aunt Macie, Bert, Nellie, Lou, George, Lena, Charlie." She can sing up the scale with the words, "Polly-bird, Polly-bird!" (a syllable for each note). She counts, occasionally miscounting a number, and says, "Polly wants her dinner now!" "Polly wants her cake," or "apple," as she happens to think. When she is very desirous of obtaining anything she prattles herself by saying, "Sweet pretty Polly," in a teasing, affectionate way. She talks to the cows, "Bess! Bess! as distinctly and loudly as any New England farmer. When she climbs up on her perch in the evening she calls out "Good night" a number of times. She never says this in the daytime. In my own home in Baltimore, we have three parrots, all considered talkers in their way, but they certainly have step into the background for this "prima donna" takes all the honors and encores. I can vouchsafe the truth of these assertions, and to dubious friends all I would say is, "Come and see for yourselves."

TARDY JUSTICE.

John Taylor, Aged Sixty-five, Sentenced to the Penitentiary for Life—History of the Case—Twice Nearly Hung.

Special Correspondence of the Cincinnati Gazette.

HARRISBURG, Ky., Sept. 8.—In the year 1866 there lived one mile west of the town of Perryville, Ky., an old lady named Bottoms, a sister of John Taylor, who had many years lived in the Circuit Court. When her husband, the late John Taylor, was a child of some ten years of age, her house was broken into and robbed by divers persons, among whom the old lady recognized William Taylor, son of John Taylor, the man who has just been sentenced. The old lady had been arrested on the complaint of Mrs. Bottoms charged with the crime. Upon a trial before an examining court, the old man was acquitted, and the charge remained pending against the son, when a most diabolical crime was committed in order to acquit him. The old lady was brutally murdered in her bed. The only witness of the tragedy was the grandchild, who recognized among the parties the elder Taylor. Tracks about the premises were followed, being recognized by the print of a horse's hoof, evidencing the fact that a part of the slaying had taken place in the barn. The parties stopped at a blacksmith shop and had it removed, thus completing the chain of testimony for their own conviction. Time out of mind there have been occasional, perhaps frequent, dispensations of mob law in Kentucky; but, as a result of this crime, which was for the first time systematically enforced, a band composed of men of the highest standing in the community resolved to anticipate the slow and uncertain administration of justice through the courts. The proof being deemed conclusive against the Taylors, father and son, the executive court of Judge Lynch held its session, and condemned them. They were pursued to Harrisburg, and, before the news of the murder had reached that place, were arrested and brought secretly to James Clark's hotel, Perryville, and sentenced. There they were taken out and hung. Pinned to the lapel of the younger Taylor's coat was a note which should not be taken down until 5 o'clock the next day. As is generally supposed, one of the court, moved by sympathy for the father, or perhaps not sufficiently assured of his participation in the crime, cut him down after the others had left. Recovering from partial strangulation he rushed to the unconscious state to the hotel, and into the room from which a short time before he had been led to execution. The rope was removed from his neck, and his life preserved. Upon his recovery he was arrested under a warrant and confined in jail at Danville. A trial in the Circuit Court. Before trial he broke jail, and, eluding the vigilance of the officers, escaped, and had remained concealed under an assumed name for some thirteen years, until his arrest last spring in Missouri, while hoeing potatoes. The outline of his life under an assumed name in that State was published in the paper of this time and need not be recapitulated here. I may say, however, to notice what seems to be a fact, that few modern criminals give evidence of a disturbed conscience. The time when such a diabolical deed would lie so heavy upon the soul of its perpetrator that he could never blot out or for a moment forget the deed, is a thing of the past. The deed, however, did not dispel the phantom of the deed; but now such criminals are greater than Macbeth, and the Banquos go down at their bidding. Is it a result of the spread of those infernal views of which Colonel Ingersoll is the champion, most comforting to criminals who desire no better? There seems to have been no evidence that Taylor was disturbed by any other reflections than such as would necessarily arise from the fear of discovery. He, however, now realizes the truth of the old maxim:

"And round and round we run, Till we find ourselves back to back,
And ever is justice done."

During his absence there was plowed up in his garden a short barreled breech-loading cavalry gun, the instrument, as described by the witness, with which the deed was done. The evidence of Mary Bottoms, now a married lady, was very conclusive on the matter of identity. She unhesitatingly pointed to the gray-headed man of sixty-five years as the one who, thirteen years before, murdered her grand mother. Upon the first ballot the jury stood eleven for capital punishment and one for penitentiary for life. He finally came over to the majority, but when paper and pen were brought, and the verdict about to be written, he retracted and stood out for confinement. To his opinion finally the entire jury came, and his average Nemesis has thus spared the old man a most cruel repetition of his earlier experience. He is the father of "Squire" Taylor, of Mercer County, a most excellent man—so entirely trusted throughout the community that he has for some time held the office of Justice of the Peace.

At a Holy Well in Ireland.

Barber's for October.

For several miles our road was bounded by bog on one side and rocks on the other. There were no evidences of human habitation, yet here and there we passed a peasant—some crumpled, all plunged in profound misery. I inquired the errand of the wanderers, and was told that they were going to St. Somebody's Day, and they were going to his well near by to be healed.

"It's there beyond," said a trembling old woman, pointing her skinny finger to a clump of trees and a stone wall a few hundred yards distant. I alighted, and walked down the valley for a while, and was surrounded by a well and withered trees. Near by was a rude stone altar, upon which were numerous offerings of toys, bits of broken ware, and shreds of many colored rags tied to sticks, and kneeling beside it was a group of cripples; some moved slowly round the circle on their knees, muttering prayers, and some telling their beads, others patting of the water, while the priest stood by the tree reading. This, then, was one of the holy wells so numerous in Ireland, to which visits are still frequently made, in some cases as works of penance, either voluntary or enjoined, but generally for obtaining health, under the auspices of the saint, by drinking the waters of the well. Of course the day of the patron saint of each well is the one chosen for these visits; and some years ago, and even now in many parts of the country, crowds were attracted, not only for religious motives, but for love of gossip, and meeting with distant friends. These wells have kept their reputation for centuries, the fame of some being coeval with Christianity, while that of others probably preceded it, the early Christian teachers having merely changed the object of worship, leaving the altars of idolatry undisturbed.

Death of a Female Blacksmith.

From the Richmond Dispatch.

Rachel Yent, who was burned on Monday afternoon from the residence of her niece, Mrs. Dora Remschneider, No. 22 North Spring street, Baltimore, had for many years worked at the forge and anvil. Her father, George Yent, came to this country from Germany, and operated a blacksmith shop on Britton street near McElerry. She learned the trade in her girlhood and became as good a hand as any man could be. As her father broke down and grew old she took control of the shop and supported the family by her own labor. She wore a tight-fitting woolen dress and a high collar, and, and frequently smoked a short clay pipe as she toiled. When the old man died she still stuck to the trade, but a few months ago she grew enfeebled and rapidly sunk. Her work had given her in her best days the muscular strength of a man. She had little difficulty when young, but she always refused to marry, preferring to remain single and provide for the family.

—Frank E. Fellow's case is to be taken up this week in the Circuit Court at Elkhorn.
—There is promised some interesting business at the Common Council meeting this evening.
—Next Friday night Bishop Peck is to preach at Court Street church. There will be a crowd to hear him.
—There will be a new moon to-morrow. That is, the almanac says so, but we don't believe it. It's probably the same old one again.
—At the close of the morning sermon at the First Methodist church, yesterday, eight probationers were received into full membership.
—Patrick Barron died Saturday afternoon at his residence in the Fourth ward. The funeral was held from St. Patrick's church this morning.
—To-morrow night is the time set for the festival and dance at St. Patrick's Temperance hall, for the benefit of the Sisters of St. Joseph's convent.
—The conference year of the Methodist churches ends this month. There is no talk of any changes being made in the pastorates of the two churches here.
—The first carload of baled hay from Clark's press was shipped northward last Saturday. The lumber regions are to receive most of the hay bought and pressed here.
—David Craney, the man who was injured by a falling timber on the pile driver the other day, has so far recovered as to be able to be taken to his home at Cary Station, Ill.
—Ed. Whiton & Co., are having a grand opening at their drug store. The whole front of the store has been taken out, and a new one is being put in, which will make a marked improvement.
—The annual meeting of the Ladies' Temperance Union, will be held at G. F. Lane's, 40 South High street, on Tuesday the 16th, at 4 p. m. All members and those interested are requested to be present.
—A. Hyatt Smith has been to Madison and examined the decision in the Ford-Smith case. He is not well satisfied with it, and thinks it does not cover all the points, and will therefore move to have a reargument.
—A special train will go from Janesville to Monroe on Friday and Saturday mornings next at 7:30 o'clock, and returning will leave Monroe at 6 o'clock, p. m. Those desiring to attend the Fair can thus do so very conveniently.
—Fred Norcross, a thirteen year old son of Philip Norcross, Esq., has just done some pretty good horseback riding in Illinois. He started from Peru for home, and the first day made twenty-eight miles, and the next seventy-seven miles. It was his first trip over the road but he piloted himself through in good shape, and arrived home in good condition. Pretty good for the boy.
—The postoffice clerks have some extra work to plan for. Orders have been received that during the first week in November a careful count shall be made and record kept of all letters, postals, newspapers, etc., which are deposited in the office during that time. The department is evidently after figures to see how much matter is being handled all over the country.
—The receipts of the State Fair last week amount to about $12,000, notwithstanding the fact that the storm made sad havoc with the gate receipts of Thursday which would otherwise have been larger than any other day of the Fair. Last year at Madison the receipts were $15,840, and had the weather proved favorable they would have been as large this year. The year before, when held here, the receipts were about $16,000.
—At the Court Street church yesterday morning a service was held for the young folk. The singing was from the Gospel Hymns, the selections being familiar, so that all could join. Rev. Mr. Paville gave a twenty minutes' talk on a text found in Luke 2:52, "And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man." He told the little folk that if they wanted to grow wiser as they grew larger, and wanted to gain more and more of God's power they must do as Jesus did. He urged them to study the Scriptures, to work for God, and to pray.
—Saturday night Mrs. Bennett, the strange woman who took so much trouble one day last week, and who was arrested and let go on condition of leaving the city, was found again in a sadly demoralized condition, being hysterical with drink, and roving about the streets and alleys in a very un ladylike manner. About midnight she was arrested but refused to go to jail, preferring to lie down on the sidewalk and equal, which she did most lustily. She was compelled to go though, and this morning she was tried in the Police Court, and given the enormous penalty of one day in jail.
—One of our physicians tells a good story on himself. He had a patient who was troubled more with the "hype" than any real disease, and other remedies having failed he concluded to try bread pills. Not having any material very handy he went into a grocery store and got a little flour, and returning to the office made the pills of usual size and sent them by messenger to the patient. She received them all right, but by the time she went to take one she found they were large enough to be a sort of cross between a marble and a baseball, and of such enormous size that she could not swallow them. An investigation of the causes led to the discovery that in his haste the doctor had used a sort of self-raising, patent flour, which needed no yeast to raise it. He won't do so any more.
—For some reason unknown, Mr. Robert Weidensall, of Chicago, failed to reach Janesville so as to take part in the meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association yesterday afternoon. The hour was well taken up, though, by Mr. W. E. Lewis, State Secretary, and by others interested in the work. Mr. Lewis gave an interesting account of what was being done for the railroad men, and the importance and magnitude of this part of the work. In speaking of the general work he expressed the opinion that Wisconsin was not keeping up its share. Rev. Mr. Sewell spoke on the necessity of having experience in order to fully cope with the work. A man could not build a house without knowing the carpenter's trade, and men could not control these meetings well without knowing by experience how it is best done. Mr. N. Dearborn and Mr. J. T. Wright also made remarks and the exercises were interspersed with singing. Mr. Weidensall is expected to arrive here this week, and will be given a chance to be heard at some other meeting.

The cases of P. J. Griffin, Richard Garry and Robert Doty, charged with assaulting Mr. Marshall at his saloon one Saturday night several weeks ago, were brought to an end Saturday afternoon, Justice Prichard finding Griffin and Garry guilty, and discharging Doty, there being no evidence against him. Griffin and Garry were fined about $30 each including costs, and not being able to pay the same were committed to jail for thirty days. The larceny case against Garry, which consists of a charge of tapping the till while the row was in progress, has not been disposed of yet.

THE RIFLES AT MONROE.

Full arrangements have been made for the Janesville Rifles to attend the Green County Fair to be held at Monroe this week. A special train will leave Janesville Friday morning at 7:30 o'clock, and will be furnished transportation on this, arriving at Monroe at 9 o'clock. They will be there met by the Band and the Committee, and will march to headquarters in town. Arrangements have been made to give them a big feed at the Fair grounds, and in the fore part of the afternoon the Rifles are to give an exhibition drill. At 5 o'clock they will have a dress parade, and will be reviewed by the Governor and his staff. Returning they will leave Monroe at 6:30 o'clock. The Fair promises to be a success in all respects. A number of prominent men from different parts of the State promise to be present. Besides speeches from them, and the military display, there are to be races, and a large display of articles on exhibition. A crowd is expected, and the promise is made that there shall be enough to interest all who come.

SCUFFLE WITH BURGLARS.

A Sunday Morning Attempt to Plunder a Store Frustrated by the Watchful Owner.
George Hatherall, who has a store at the west end of Court street bridge, got an intimation in some way that burglars had designs upon his place of business, and so he has been watching for them all day. Early yesterday morning, about half-past 5 o'clock, he was in the store, when two fellows commenced working an entrance from beneath. He waited patiently until they had got into the store, and as soon as he saw they had discovered him, he raised his arm and held his hand out as though pointing a revolver at them and then told them to halt and not move a muscle or he would shoot them. They looked at him a minute and seeing that he had no revolver one of them clutched him while the other one hit him, and a general scuffle ensued, in which no blood was spilled, but several blows exchanged. The scuffle ended by the fellows running away, leaving him in peaceful possession of his store. The fellows have not been caught yet.

THEY WILL NOT GO.

As already stated in the Gazette there have been for several days grave doubts about the Guards going to Rockford, owing to the fact that the competitive drill is declared off. Lieutenant Glass and Sergeant Thor Judd started for Rockford this morning to see about the matter, but later in the forenoon word was received from Rockford over the wires that no satisfactory arrangements could be made by the Rifles with the Fair managers, and that the Guards had better not come. This will doubtless settle the whole matter, and the Guards will forego for the present the pleasure of visiting Rockford.

SUGAR CANE GROUND NOTICE.

All those who have sorghum cane which they wish to have made into pure, first quality syrup or sugar will please call at my works, No. 70 North Main street, Janesville, and examine my syrup. When I say pure syrup I mean a pure, fine flavored syrup which will command 60 cents and upwards per gallon in market. I do not mean syrup with that offensive green flavor which has heretofore cursed the name of sorghum, and is valueless in market. I have a capacity for working up thirty tons of cane a day, and have ample storage to care for it properly until it is worked up. I make syrup on shares by the gallon, or buy the cane.

to make money safely, easily and rapidly, is now, while the stock market offers so many splendid opportunities. A San Francisco mining agent made $22,428.16 from four combinations, his first investment being $100. Others have been equally fortunate. Every day there are new and grand opportunities. Dr. Swayne & Son—Gente: I have been suffering for ten years with Asthma, Bronchitis and an affection of the stomach, causing me to expectorate a great deal of thick phlegm; have tried various medicines and treatments, but never could get relief until I tried your "Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry." It loosens the phlegm which chokes me, and induces sleep, and can feel myself improving in health and growing stronger as I persevere in its use. This is entirely voluntary on my part, and you can make use of it, if you see proper, for the benefit of sufferers as well as yourselves. ROBERT T. KEYS, residence, 141 Park Avenue, Baltimore, April 12, 1879.
No other known remedy possesses the great virtue of Dr. Swayne's Syrup in effectively curing all troubles of the air passages and lungs. Equally valuable in Bronchitis and Asthmatic affections. The first dose gives relief, and it is sure to cure the worst cough, all throat and lung diseases. Price 25 cents and $1.00 per bottle for $5. The large size is the most economical. Prepared only by Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia. Sold by all prominent druggists. j33dwly-2

From a Well-Known Writer.

From Mrs. Mary Francis, well known as "Margaret Blount." Brightbank, Woodstock, Vt., Oct. 8th, 1876.
Sister W. F. & Son:
Gentlemen—Two years ago I began to take the PERUVIAN SYRUP. I was in a languid, half-sleep state, through incipient dyspepsia and defective circulation of the blood. Three bottles of the PERUVIAN SYRUP changed this to glowing, bounding health. I have a fine appetite, sleep soundly, and can walk five miles easily, without resting, or busy myself out of doors all day long without fatigue.
A lady cousin who resides with me, took the Syrup during her recovery from a serious illness of some weeks. She has been an invalid for years. Five bottles of the Syrup have so built up her system that she now eats quite heartily, sleeps well, and can walk three miles (in fine weather) without fatigue. I consider the medicine so invaluable to persons of sedentary pursuits, or to those who suffer from languor or low spirits, that I relate this personal experience of its effects to you, leaving you to make what use you please of my letter. Yours, very respectfully, MARY FRANCIS.
Sold by all dealers generally. Sold by Prentice & Evenson, Janesville, sep15dwly-1
